"How Can You Study? . . ."

I'm Amazed! BYU Visitor Exclaims

by Charlotte Sandberg
Universe Staff Writer

"How do you ever study when out of the window you can see these beautiful shadows on the mountains?" Jacqueline Mackenzie, Monday's forum speaker, said Monday afternoon.

"THIS CAMPUS amazes me. A university in Britain is all centered in one big building. The students go and live in the town." When the British students go to school they put on a cloak and hat to distinguish them from the townspeople. They always wear that costume at school.

"Of course, everyone at home goes to school until they are 18. Then those who go into a university are going to be scientists or doctors or professors."

"I'M JUST VERY impressed and amazed at all the things I have seen here, like the book store. It is amazing. I wondered where the students got those huge volumes of Shakespeare they were studying in class."

Miss Mackenzie visited Dr. Karl Young's Shakespeare class after her speech. She said it was fabulous. I'd forgotten so much. Miss Mackenzie learned things that I'd never thought about before.

"I'VE BEEN in the States since the first of September," said Miss Mackenzie. Her husband will join her soon. He remained in Britain, because a printer's strike held up the publication of his second book.

"It amazes me how you Americans remember how much everything costs and how big everything is." All of these numbers are absolutely amazing," Miss Mackenzie said.

WHEN ASKED how she managed to do such vivid imitations of accents, she said, "In British travel a great deal over a small area where many accents are used. She stated that people in the British Isles often tell jokes with an accent."

"All of these amazing beautiful buildings, I just can't get used to such vivid imitations of accents, she said, "In British travel a great deal over a small area where many accents are used. She stated that people in the British Isles often tell jokes with an accent."

Comedienne Gives Audience Linguistic Tour

by Danny Moore
Universe Staff Writer

Jacqueline Mackenzie, famed British comedienne, speaking in coordination with the annual Woman's Week activities at Brigham Young University, pantomimed and story-told her way from a fox hunt in England to a fishing trip on the North Sea in Monday's forum assembly.

MISS MACKENZIE took the audience on a linguistic tour of the British Isles. She gave examples of the different types of language native to certain geographic divisions of the Isles.

Miss Mackenzie said that "the Britisher is a self-made man who worships his maker," that "the Irishman doesn't know what he wants but Begorrah he's willing to fight for it" and that "the Scotchman keeps the Sabbath and everything else he can get his hands on."

MISS MACKENZIE, who has had her pantomime compared to Sid Caesar's and her story-telling likened to English actor Peter Ustinov's, is the first girl in her family in a hundred years, not, as has been erroneously reported "the first girl my parents have had in a hundred years."

She told of a fox hunt, an opera, an almost night fishing trip on the North Sea on which her boat recorded the lowest catch of its history and finally she pantomimed experiences at a Women's Royal Army Corps review.

Women, Seek Wisdom

Have you taken a good look at a woman lately?

Now before anyone says, "sure you nut," let us explain that we're interested in more than certain physical characteristics known to boys as "the vital statistics."

Although it is very true that the human female has attributes which any normal human male could not help noticing and appreciating, there is more to women than meets the well-trained eye.

LIMITED VIEW

And to appreciate only the physical qualities of any woman is to limit oneself unnecessarily. To appreciate only that which is apparent on the surface is like eating only the peeling from a rich, red apple and throwing the rest away.

Intellectuality is a frightening thing to some people. An "intellectual" girl is supposed to be one who gets that way sitting home nights reading Gibran while her scatterbrained but well stacked roommates go out and have a ball.

But that "ain't necessarily so." A girl who is sharp enough to carry on a conversation on a level higher than "Marsha gave John his pin back last night," or "Isn't that a darling skirt," need't worry about sitting home nights.

COMPLEX WORLD

In this increasingly complex world we live in, it is becoming more and more important for women to be able to understand deep problems. With women controlling close to three fourths of the nation's wealth and representing over half of the voting population, the "hand that rocks the cradle," is the hand that can rock many other things, including our economic boat.

We're not trying to say that the "woman's place" is in the stock exchange, or on the missile launching pad or in the White House. For us the woman's place is still in the home.

But let's take a look at today's home. It's a pretty complex thing. In the kitchen there's an electric range with so many push buttons and dials that it takes a background in engineering to run it.

TRASH OR TREASURE

In the front room is a television which spews out treasures and trash indiscriminately. A child whose mother has let her intellectual development stop at "Flowerpot" or "Seventeen" will likely be seeing a good deal more trash than treasure on television. This is simply because the child doesn't know any better and the mother hasn't bothered to find out.

Even in every day things like planning a budget and buying groceries, a woman who has developed her intellect is ahead. When end-of-the-month bills come, a husband should be very grateful that his wife took the time or simply keeping rather than party planning and basket weaving.

NOTHING TO DO

Picture a husband coming home beat and tired and his wife says, "I've just got to get out of this house. I'm going nuts, there's nothing to do. Let's go to a movie or to a dance."

Picture the same man coming home to a wife who, after she fixes his dinner, says, "I know you are tired doc, so why don't you just relax. I've just started a new book and we could read a quiet evening at home."

Whether or not you think the above examples are corny, there is an amount of good in them. Women of today must guide their children through pitfalls and problems that never existed before. Every day they must solve sociological, economic and political problems that their mothers and grandmothers never dreamed of.

So we believe that the man who said "With all thy getting, get wisdom," was talking to women as well as to men.

This Women's Week we salute you, young women. We also give you a challenge—Brighten Your Understanding.

SDS Okays Y Petition For Charter

Approval for the establishment at Brigham Young University of a new chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, national professional journalism fraternity, was announced Monday.

A BYU Press Club petition to the fraternity was unanimously accepted by delegates to the organization's 50th anniversary convention at Indianapolis, Ind.

THE ACCEPTANCE of the petition was reported by Dr. Oliver E. Smith, BYU journalism chairman, and Larry Day, graduate student from Idaho Falls, who represented the Press Club at the convention.

Installation of the new chapter will be conducted by national representatives of the fraternity, and will take place during winter quarter. Sigma Delta Chi now includes 70 undergraduate and 53 professional chapters throughout the United States.

ACTIVITIES of the "Golden Anniversary" convention in Indianapolis last week included visit to De Pauw University, where the fraternity was organized in 1898 by 10 undergraduate journalists, and a visit to the Indianapolis Speedway.

Vice President Richard N. Nixon, Chicago Tribune foreign correspondent Jules Dubois, and television commentator David Brinkley addressed various sessions of the four-day convention.

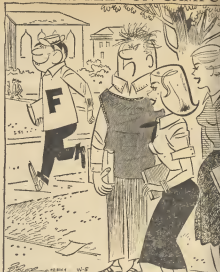

Nixon, who spoke following a convention dinner Friday night, followed his short address with a question-answer session. The audience was then invited to pin the vice president down on such topics as the farm problem, the steel strike, American foreign policy, cranberries.

THE VICE PRESIDENT would not speculate on prospects of his becoming Republican candidate for the U.S. He didn't even admit that he was a prospective candidate. Dubois told assembled journalists that Fidel Castro had hoodwinked his public and betrayed the trust of thousands of people. Dubois was threatened in Cuba and finally forcibly ejected. He is the author of "Fidel Castro, Liberator or Dictator?" and "Freedom Is My Best."

BRINKLEY SPOKE on the recent television rigging scandal. He said that although the action of certain television producers was reprehensible, he felt that the television industry was being dragged down with "every one else's sins."

Student officers of the BYU Press Club which was granted affiliation with the national fraternity are: W. Frank Haines, president; David H. Thomas, vice president and Duston G. Harvey, secretary.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

"NAH, THAT ISN'T HIS LETTER SWEATER—THAT'S HIS GRADE AVERAGE."

Women's Officers Cite Need For Education

Editors note: In connection with Women's Week, the Associated Students of Brigham Young University, through its officers, Glenn Cooper, Bonnie Brown, Marge Potter and Pat Halgren submitted the following thought-provoking editorial for publication.

by Marge Potter
Written for the Universe

"What is civilization?" asks Emerson. Answering his own question he replies: "The power of good women." With this realization firmly in mind the Associated Women Students began its sponsorship of Women's Week.

The Associated Women Students' Council has as its objective providing an atmosphere on the Brigham Young University campus in which women can realize their power for good in the world and make their greatest gains.

IT HAS BEEN said that a woman's life consists of "discontinuous sections." The basic necessity is for a woman, while living through one stage of her life, to prepare herself for the one which is to follow.

SENSING STRONGLY the "spirit of the Y" we feel that BYU provides the most nearly ideal atmosphere in which a good can prepare for her future life. We realize the responsibility that AWS has of safeguarding and supplementing this atmosphere.

There has been much controversy in recent years about the necessity of education for women. Concerning this controversy of the AWS Council—all feel the majority of the student body, with a hearty "yes" in action of the need of education for women.

IF EDUCATION serves other purpose for women to think clearly and independently, and enabled to establish habits of self-discipline that will continue through life.

IN SHORT, education values the fine art of living other people through personal development, moral sensitivity, awareness of one's duties and responsibilities as a citizen, rewards of college are not for all, and should not be by sex.

AS AWS OFFICERS, desirous of promoting personal and activities which can help provide women with opportunities for growth. This growth comes in the understanding of self, and helping others.

As women understand themselves and develop their talents, they free themselves responsibility, the touchstone of maturity. Maturity to accept responsibility as wives, respect as mothers, and respect as members of the community in which they live.

TO HELP WOMEN students achieve this degree of maturity, we as AWS officers urge ourselves.

Needs Help

Dear Editor,

I am writing this letter in the hope that you will print it in the Universe, as I need your help very much.

On Tuesday, Nov. 10, my husband and I went down to the Page School to get immunization shots for our two little boys.

MY HUSBAND left my car coat on a vending machine and when he returned for it, it was gone. I need this coat very badly as we cannot afford to replace it. Therefore, I am offering a reward for its return to either C-80, Weyburn Village, or to the BYU Lost and Found.

The coat is styled like a man's coat and is olive in color with a red print lining. On the inside label it is printed "Ron" and "Eddie."

TO WHOEVER will return this coat goes my deepest thanks, for it also has a sentimental value as it was the last thing I ever received from my father.

'Couldn't Afford It'

Dear Editor:

In answer to your editorial Thursday concerning the Vienna Philharmonic concert, I would like to tell you my husband and I weren't there.

"I couldn't afford it," and neither could he. I work part time for BYU and my salary of $59 a month supports us both. My husband is a senior in geology, carrying a full load and I am a full time graduate student.

BECAUSE of the steel strike his opportunity for work has been sporadic and we live on what I make on campus. We have been to one movie in the last two months.

My husband is a singer, I am a professional musician (classical of course) and we have 17¢ between us until pay day on the 24th.

Barry Mackay Defeats Japanese Tennis Ace

TOKYO, Nov. 18 — (UPI) — America's Barry Mackay, showing Davis Cup form, crushed Japan's top-ranking Asahi Miyagi today to grab the singles crown in the 33th Japanese national tennis championships.

Mackay downed his opponent in straight sets 6-2, 6-3, 6-3. In a fast match watched by an estimated 4,000 fans including Prince Suba, sister of crown Prince Akihito, Mackay's powerful serve and smashing drives proved too much for Miyagi.

Miyagi, however, made a brief comeback in the third set when he quickly took two games from the big American. But Mackay bounced back and ended the game impressively with three straight aces.

The Dayton, Ohio, youth told United Press International after the match that Miyagi showed a "lot of good at passing shots."

"But I felt in top shape today and played about the best I have played on clay courts."

McKay, has been on a world tour since the Davis Cup championships last summer. He lost the final match of the classic journey to Australia's Rod Laver.

The Aussies recaptured the coveted trophy after one year. It had been won the year before by volatile and unpredictable tennis sensation, Alex Ormelo, of Los Angeles and Peru.
